

Abstract

An automotive steering assist system having an electric motor provided with poles organized into 2 groups. The motor has means for detecting shorts in the poles and means for disabling all poles in a pole group whenever a short is detected in a pole of that group.